There are more than five hundred children in the MCD Zumrudpur school. "We tried to involve as many children as possible from decoration, choreography and dance. It was about transcending limitations and came out winners."

"It was a showcase of how one person like Aman can make a difference in so many lives" says Padmavati Dwivedi, Founder Compassionate Living. Children, volunteers and teachers joined in the fun that left everyone with a smile. It was cheer all around.

Compassionate Living is very keen on promoting volunteering in MCD schools, the children are eager to soak in any attention and love that is showered on them and in the process also absorb new culture brought their way. The NGO encourages volunteers to teach what they love to do themselves. In case of Aman; it is her passion for dance.

"As we do not wish to invest too much energy in fund raising we use whatever is available with our members which in turn brings in 'out of the box' thinking. Although a member wished to sponsor snacks, but we decided not to give any external rewards like snacks and prizes but to provide lot of positive encouragement and a platform to just enjoy what they are doing. In the end it did turn out to be an overwhelming and memorable experience for all", concluded Padmavati.
